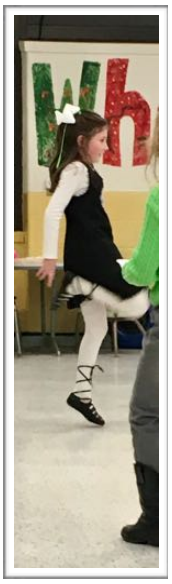
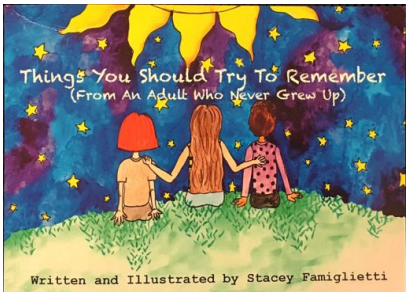
Weekly Newsletter

We Are BES!

After another successful Book Fair, the PTA closed their correspondence with thank you's to the "village" that came together in the events of this week. This week's principal's newsletter echoes that celebration by sharing snapshots of the BES Village in action supporting our youngest students through culture building events—like Wacky Wednesday and Skippy Jon Jones' visit—to playful learning experiences in the classroom. Our students were caught reading in the classroom and at home, researching and reporting out on biomes, building creative traps and justifying their designs, writing their own poetry, and using print-making to create cityscapes.



We ended the week with a family breakfast where we were treated by the talents of one of our Irish step dancers. This week into next, we are also welcoming the newest members of the BES school community at kindergarten registration. I am privileged to announce as well, that this week, we celebrate our resident author and illustrator, Mrs. Stacey Famiglietti, who published her first book! Please see the cover of this heartfelt and inspiring children's book (left) and stop in to read a copy!



Lastly, please cheer on the whole K-6 Babylon Team as we take on the Harlem Wizards this Saturday night at 6pm at the High School Gym!
